Power Conversion System

- Single-stage three-level modularization
- Multi-branch input to reduce battery series and parallels connection

Overview

Can solar panels be stolen?

The likelihood of theft also tends to increase as the value and popularity of solar panels grow, with thieves looking to sell stolen solar panels on the secondary market. Additionally, construction sites where solar panels have not yet been fully installed and secured can be particularly vulnerable to theft. That then begs the question.

How to protect solar panels from theft?

You can use mechanical locks on the mounting equipment to prevent the panels from being easily removed. The locks should be custom-designed for solar panel installation and tamper-resistant. Installing an alarm system that triggers a loud noise if the panels are tampered with can help deter potential thieves.

Are solar PV projects causing theft and vandalism?

The capital costs of solar PV projects can be enormous, running up into millions of dollars and with parks taking years to realise. Given this, developers want to make the most out of their investment but an increasing practice is threatening this return: theft and vandalism of solar technology.

How do I recover stolen solar panels?

Another effective way to recover stolen solar panels is to make your panels easy to track. GPS tracking devices are used in many industries to prevent theft, most notably in motor vehicles. GPS tracking technology is extremely accurate and has been found to be an extremely effective way to recover stolen solar panels.

Can a PV module be stolen?

There are also two other key factors that affect the potential for PV module theft: PV systems have experienced dramatic growth all over the world - from inner cities to rural villages. A stolen PV module has value in resale dollars and also as a source of power for small appliances.

Are solar panels a target for thieves?

While it is not extremely common, solar panels can indeed be a target for thieves. This is especially true in more remote or isolated areas where surveillance is minimal and the solar panels can be removed with less risk of being caught.
