Overview

How can Oman improve its oil production?

Improvements in Oman's capacity and efficiency – such as enhanced oil recovery techniques, including the use of solar steam to extract oil from deposits located deep underground instead of natural gas – are expected to let it allocate more resources for higher value segments.

Who owns Block 6 oil & gas concessions in Oman?

In addition to Hydrom, EDO owns 60% of the Block 6 oil concession and 100% of the Block 6 non-associated gas concession. The Petroleum Development Oman (PDO) was responsible for roughly 64% of the country's oil reserves at the end of 2021, according to the MEM's 2021 annual report.

Is Oman a green Sultanate?

Oman is ramping up renewable energy efforts to reduce domestic hydrocarbon consumption and fuel its green hydrogen ambitions. The sultanate aims to become the world's sixth-largest hydrogen exporter by 2030, with its hydrogen sales projected to surpass LNG by 2050.

Can Oman achieve net-zero emissions by 2050?

These include energy efficiency projects such as those that aim to reduce natural gas and methane emissions by using advanced monitoring techniques like satellites and thermal cameras. This followed the official announcement in October 2022 that Oman aims to achieve net-zero emissions by 2050.

What does the MEM do in Oman?

Al Afi is tasked with overseeing efforts to help Oman advance its goal of creating a less carbon-intensive future. In addition to hydrocarbons, the MEM also oversees renewable energy and industry development. Oman aims to be a leading producer and exporter of hydrogen made using electricity generated by renewable sources.

How is Oman orienting its economy?

Oman has leaned on oil and gas to fuel its economy since production first began in 1967. The sultanate plans to continue to orient its economy around this sector, even as it looks to shift the emphasis away from crude towards natural gas and downstream developments.
